

Benefits Outsourcing

excellence | flexibility | expertise | transparency | partnership

The intense pressure on human resources to manage costs and increase operating synergies makes efficient and accurate benefits administration more important than ever.

Towers Watson is committed to providing the highest-quality pension and health and welfare outsourcing services in the industry. We align our services to your human resources goals and business objectives — and we do this at a competitive price. We strive to be the highest-quality benefits outsourcing firm through our premier customer service and day-to-day administrative processes.

Quality Is in Our DNA

At Towers Watson, we have an unwavering focus on quality. Our quality assurance program, Professional Excellence, is also one of our firm’s five core values. It sets the direction of the firm and drives the daily activities of your Towers Watson administration team. Each part of Professional Excellence is designed to ensure our clients receive outsourcing services that meet or exceed their needs and are complete, correct and clearly communicated. With every interaction and deliverable, we aim to exceed expectations.

Unique Focus, Excellent Results

Towers Watson’s outsourcing focus is unique. We offer a flexible delivery model that does not sacrifice high-quality interactions, processes and results.

We do not try to fit an organization — with its own unique benefit programs and culture — into a preconceived mold. In fact, we firmly believe that a “one-size-fits-all” approach leads to unexpected costs, mismatched expectations, tension between the client and the provider, and ultimately a poor experience for the employee.

Instead, we provide a continuum of sourcing options to fit your needs: (1) system; (2) system and administration; and (3) system, administration and service center.

You also have the option to adjust to new services over time. Many of our clients have selected Towers Watson as their provider for this very reason.

Transparency in All We Do

Outsourcing your benefit administration to Towers Watson means you have access to everything we do, including our interactions with your employees, retirees and dependents. These are your benefit programs, so you can see your organization’s data and access your participant information, including case histories and call notes, allowing you to make well-educated, strategic decisions about future program design.

Partnering for Success

We partner with you to become one seamless benefit team. Towers Watson's integrated benefits outsourcing team includes associates that collaborate with you from a benefits, technology and communication perspective.

We also partner with you to define success measures that meet your service delivery expectations. We understand that each client defines success differently based on its unique business objectives. Our success is defined by your measures, period.

Exceptional Experience

Our premier customer service experience is an integral part of our delivery model — both from an employee self-service perspective as well as a service center perspective.

Our innovative BenefitConnect self-service solution meets benefits administration challenges with ease, providing your employees with an exceptional user interface where they can manage their own benefits, in a time and place that works for them. And should they need to talk with someone, your employees will experience exceptional customer service provided by our service center — with a quality level that is unmatched.
